The Potomac Fisheries.

The Alexandria correspondent of the Balmore Sun writes as follows:

The Petomac fisheries are no inconsiderable portion of the spring work on that river, and its shad and herring have a wide reputation, and in former days wagons came to this city, which was the principal mart of the fisheries, not only from Maryland and Virginia, but from Tennes see and Kentucky, as well as from the southern tier of Peansylvania counties. This correspond dence indicated a few weeks ago the probabili ties of the season, and mentioned that the fish eries would open about the 25th of March The season has now just begun. The shores which will be fished are as follows:

Virginia Landings .- Jackson City, James Huoter; Ferry Lanning, near Mount Verson, Wm. Knight; Gunston, (Tick Landing) And. J. Haisty; Free Stone Point, Jacob Fannes. with these, in Occoquan bay, Marsh Hall, E. T. Bowers; Plum Tree Gut, R. Traverse, Sandy Point, Tucker & Nelson; Deep Hole, Ticer & Co.; Belmont, Thomas Haislip, and these, below that bay: Stony Point, Gibson Brothers, Tump, Capt. Fanace; Arkendale, W. H. Smith & Co.; Dipple Linding, Captain Hore; Clitton, Withers Waller, Gums, Jetts Baki, Wiedmill J. Robb; Windmill Point, C. Fannes & Son, Foulkes, Joseph Cawood, and Walte Point, Capt, Hickock.

Maryland Landing. — I'ent Landing, (near Fort Poete,) Capt, Beasley; Fort, (near Fort Washington.) Capt, Harris; Mozley's, James Captan's C. Fannee; Greenway, Osc. R. Smith; Unt Linning, Wm. M. Eliett; Fo. menkey Peier, Howell S. Barros; Chapman's Point, John S. Chapman, and Stump Neek. Capt. Cunningham. Besides these there are some small fisheries, mostly form fisheries for home consumption. There are in all some thirty landings ushed. the number indicated in the list correspond ence on the subject of the fisheries. At all these landings somes of from half a mile to seven miles in leng h are laid out, one east being made fast to ropes that are scented on the shore, and the seine laid out into the wa ter by a large boat, which makes a semi-circula: course and lands the other end of the seins on the shore, sometimes a mile above, then the ropes at both ends are drawn in by capstains worked by horses or men, and in some instances by steam, until each end of the seine is dragged ashere and the fish in its troils begin to jump out of the water, when smaller boats dip up the fish as the seine is drawn closer, and those not dipped up are lauded on the beach when the whole of the seine is drawn in. Much of the fishing this year, as for several years past, will be done by the gillers, who now employ agents at the fish wharves in the same manner as the lessees of shores. The gillers use no shore. They fish in the channel of the river, their nets, cork above and lead below floating vertically across the channel. The fish, mainly shad are caught by running their heads into the meshes of the net suspended across their path and being held by the gills on attempting to withdraw. These gillers have now become quite numerous, and one of the best authorities as to the Potomae fisheries etimates that while there will be but thirty or forty scines dipped there will be about a hun dred gill nets fished this servon. The gill net ters were formerly looked upon as peachers and legislative authority and military for --

have been used against them in vain. It is understood that of late years some of the land-owners on the riverside whose proper ty is too bold or rugged on its river front for a fish landing, which requires a smooth beach, have exercised their riparian rights by making leases to gill-netters of the right to fish in front of their property.

The fishing shore owners are generally im placably heatile to gill-netting, and there are feuds of long standing between different companies of gill netters; and the fact that every gill net is more or less likely to injure produc tiveness of every other net in its vicinity, and that the fishing limits of a lease are not always accurately determined, are fruitful causes of dispute. Fights are not uccommon, seldom, however, reaching the extent of the gill netters war last year. A considerable number of pungy boats arrunning fish from the shores and gill-nets to the District cities and Alexandria. The steam ers Samuel Gedney, Captain Spranzby; Hai binger, Captain Grogg; Prince William, Cap tain Selectman, and other togs and steamerare engaged in connection with the fisheries. and the steamers J.W. Phomps in and Mattan will also bring up fielt. The probability that the lishing senson here after will never be as ancessial as those of past years is universally accepted. For this many causes have been assigned, among them are Gill nets, by prevention the passage of fight to the spawning grounds; tong selacs, which tons up the spawn from the river bostom, the cartier off of the spawn from the cut fish for fertil 2 of purposes; the ignoreds of the bine fish, (raylors) which, it is said, kin thousands of herring, the cultivation of the land which increases the mad flieds that meet the fl-h on their way to propospawning grounds and make them turn about and leave their spaws below, the gas tar and sewerage of the ciris. All these and many other causes have been assigned for an officer which all see and deplote. The receipts at Alexandria this year have not exceeded 1 000 shad and 0,000 herring. The limits of Fishtawa have been much reduced, and although all the facilities for doing business, including a telegraph office, here beer established at the wharf, there has been as yet little trade, and the dealers do not appear to be very sanguine.
